HCDE RELEASE

Twenty-five schools in Aldine, Alief, Galena Park, Houston, Pasadena, Sheldon and a state charter school will receive a share of $650,000 in after school funding as the 2015-2016 school year begins. The program called the Partnership Project is administered by the Center for After-School, Summer and Expanded Learning for Kids, or CASE for Kids, a division of Harris County Department of Education. Funding is designated for economically disadvantaged children ages 4-12 and is provided by the Houston-Galveston Area Council, the Texas Workforce Commission and local foundations.

Harris County Department of Education commits local funds to supplement literacy and numeracy activities in quality, out-of-school time programming for youth. Those funds are matched with a commitment of federal childcare funds for quality improvement for school-age youth through the Texas Workforce Commission. HCDE provides a variety of resources such as training, site visits, scholarships and a lending library to the 25 selected sites.

"The goal of the Partnership Project is to invest in comprehensive afterschool programs that have a primary focus on numeracy and literacy development," said CASE for Kids Director Lisa Thompson-Caruthers. "CASE will provide funded project support for numeracy and literacy integration into academic and enrichment activities, as well as site-based coaching to improve overall program quality."

The following districts and schools will receive these funds:

Aldine — Goodman Elementary (77088) $30,000;
 Raymond Academy (77039) $30,000; Stehlik Intermediate (77038) $30,000

Charter — Academy of Accelerated Learning (77081) $30,000

Alief — Heflin Elementary (77082) $30,000

Galena Park — Green Valley Elementary (77015) $30,000
