Do the youth in your program have opportunities to work together in groups, teaching and learning from each other? Cooperative learning is an excellent way to nurture youth leadership, build community, and keep things fun. This interactive workshop equips participants with grouping strategies and ways to think about building cooperative learning into any program offering.

The research in OST proves that students who get the nutrients they need and stay physically active are better learners, stay on task and have better attendance. Come discover how your OST program is positioned to play an essential role in impacting the health and wellness of the students you serve. You learn about the Center for Disease and Control's Whole School, Whole Child, Whole Community Model, where OST fits into the model and the impact your program can make in collaboration with schools. We explore national healthy eating and physical activity standards and how your OST program can set the foundation for implementing policies and practices that support those standards.

Behavior Management 3.0

Friday, October 26, 2018
10 a.m. - 12 p.m.
6005 Westview Dr.
Houston, Texas 77055

Workshop fee: None

Behavior Management 3.0 is designed to help participants change their knowledge, insights, skills, behaviors, and attitudes. You gain a clearer understanding of how reinforcement, punishment and function are related and how they can be manipulated to affect behavioral change. Basic behavior principles are explained in simple language, using real-life examples. How do you prevent chaos in a youth environment without stifling the positive energy of youth? Youth need structure and clear limits in order to feel safe. This interactive workshop helps participants analyze the level of structure in their programs and practice identifying and maintaining clear limits.
