Reaching Children & Parents through their Personal Love Language

Five Love Languages

Every day in the afterschool setting, staff interact with students and parents with many different personalities, interests and strengths. Each person also has a primary love language: the way that they give and receive love. We need to tap into this language in order to reach people and make them feel special, accepted and successful. This workshop explores “5 love languages” outlined by Gary Chapman and provides insight into how to speak other love languages to enhance relationships. Tips and tools for parents to understand their children’s love language are also shared.
